Rosie reporting

aboard, Sir!

Who is Rosie?

Rosie reported aboard for the first time in October, 1945, when her ship was commissioned. Since then, she has accompanied the ship everywhere in all its travels throughout the world. For sixteen years she has been a part of everything the ROOSEVELT does. And by her actions, she has disproven the adage of its being bad luck to have a woman aboard ship . . . You may not have been aware of her, but she has been here all along . . .

Rosie is the spirit of

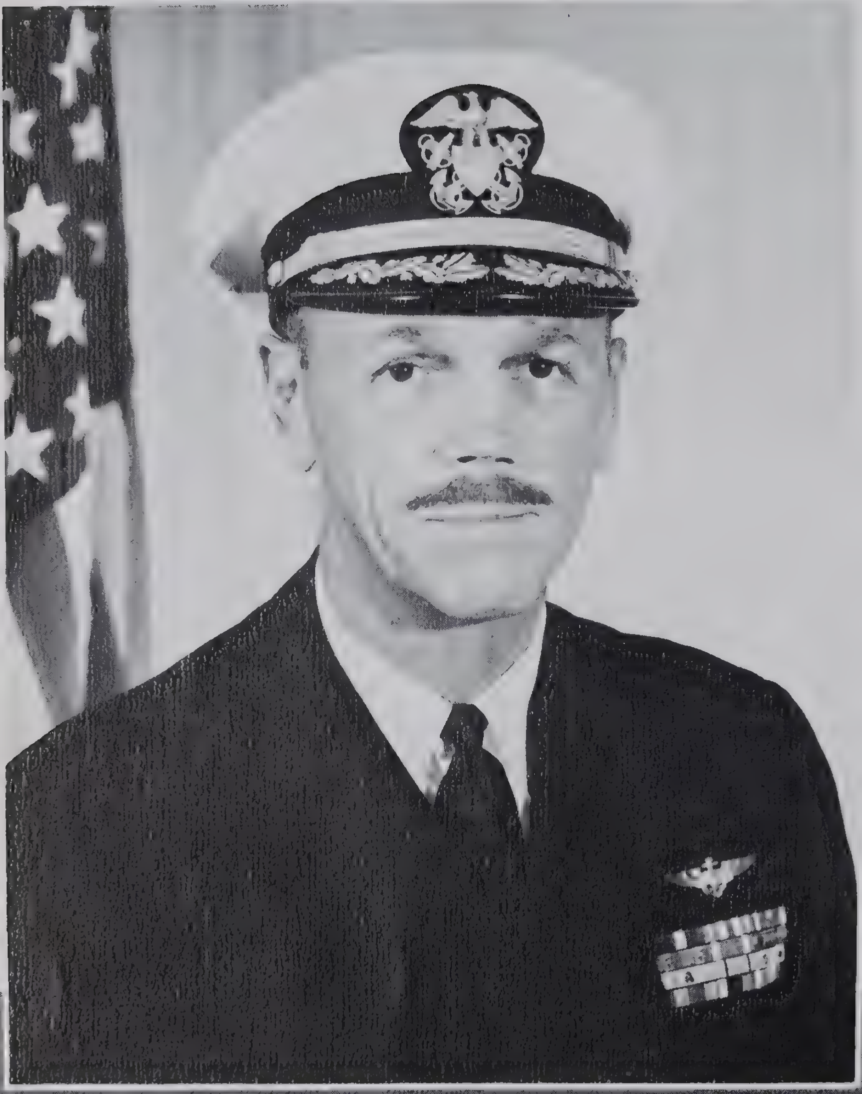
COMMANDING OFFICER

Captain Edward William Hessel

10 June 1960 – 16 June 1961



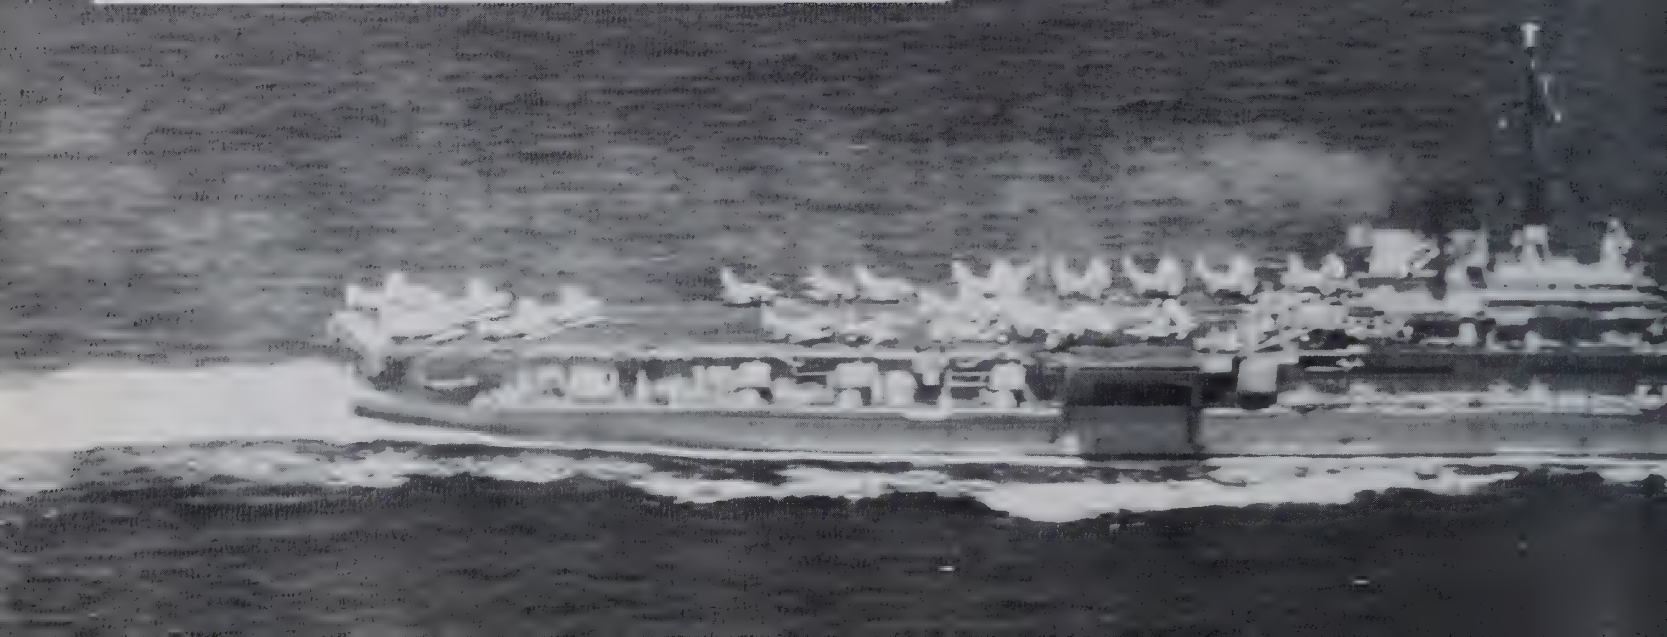
Captain Edward W. Hessel was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1937. Upon graduation, he served a short tour aboard USS WEST VIRGINIA prior to reporting to NAS Pensacola, where he underwent flight training and was designated a Naval Aviator in 1940.

Later assigned to VF-72 in 1940, he saw service aboard several carriers including USS RANGER, USS WASP, USS SARATOGA, USS HORNET, USS ENTERPRISE and USS NASSAU. In 1943 he reported to NAS Kingsville, Texas for duty until a year later when he became Commanding Officer, VF-82 aboard USS BENNINGTON.

For his service in World War II he was awarded the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with six stars for capture and consolidation of Guadalcanal, Buim-Paisi, the Stewart Islands, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

After two years as an instructor at the U.S. Naval Academy he commanded Carrier Air Group SEVEN aboard USS PHILIPPINE SEA and USS LEYTE. Later he served a year as Executive Officer with FALLWEATRALANT in Key West.

His first major carrier command came in 1954, when he became Executive Officer, USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN. After a year as Commanding Officer, VC4, and attendance at the National War College, he was assigned as Commanding Officer, USS NAVASOTA. Captain Hessel relieved Captain Hugh Winters as Commanding Officer of the ROOSEVELT on June 10, 1960.



COMMANDING OFFICER

Captain Edward L. Anderson

16 June 1961 –

Captain Edward L. Anderson was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1938. He served in destroyers and cruisers prior to being ordered to flight training in Pensacola in 1940.

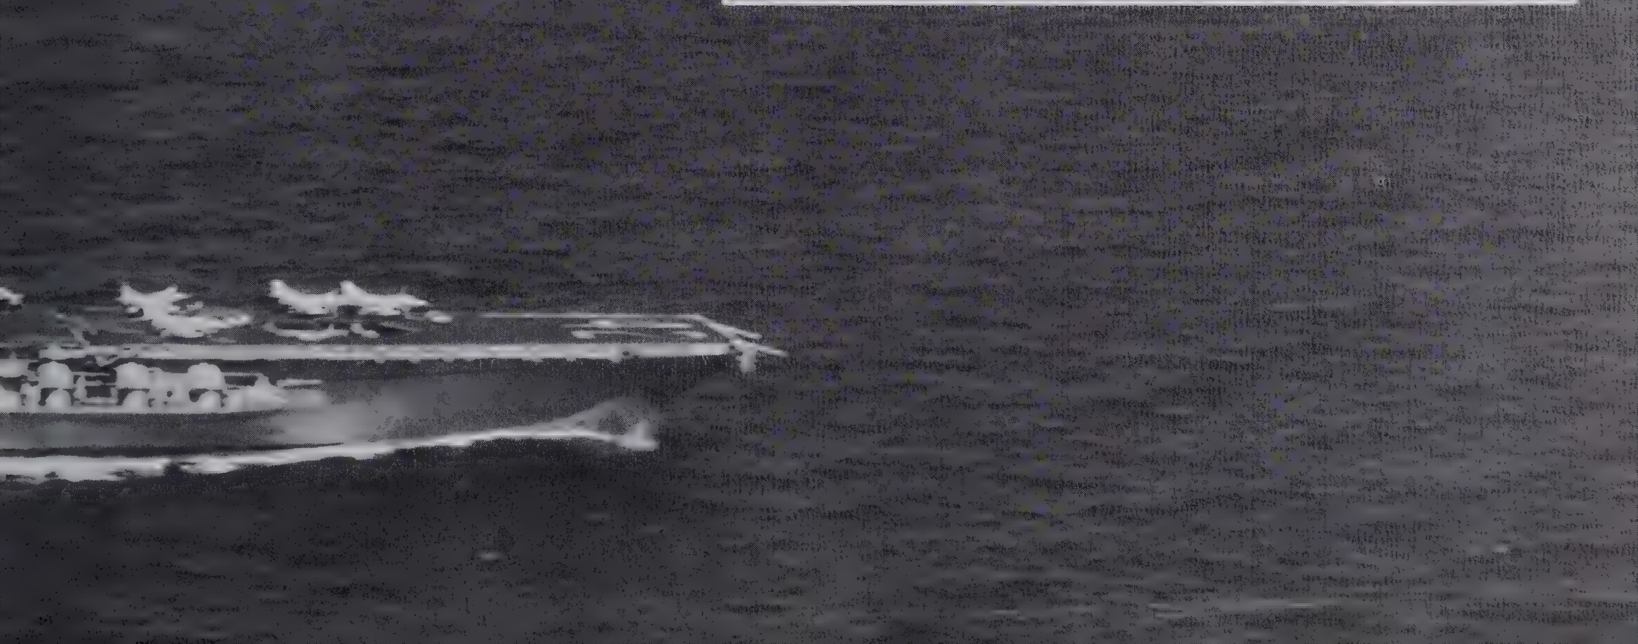
After earning his wings as a Naval Aviator, Captain Anderson was assigned to Bombing Squadron Six in 1941 aboard the USS ENTERPRISE, which took part in the early air action in the Pacific during World War II. Following the battle of Midway, he was assigned to the Advanced Operational Training Command, NAS Daytona Beach, Fla., where he served as Chief Flight Instructor. In 1944, Captain Anderson became Commanding Officer of Bombing Squadron 80, attached to the USS TICONDEROGA.

For his service in World War II, Captain Anderson earned the Navy Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal, the Purple Heart, Presidential Unit Citation, and Pacific Campaign Medal.

From 1945 through September, 1949, Captain Anderson saw duty as Air Officer aboard the USS CARD, with the Joint Air Intelligence Division, Headquarters U.S. Air Force, and on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Atlantic Fleet. This was followed by assignments as Navigator, Air Officer, and Operations Officer aboard the USS MIDWAY.

Following graduation from Armed Forces Staff College, he was assigned to the Strategic Plans Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations. He also served in Naples at the Headquarters, Allied Forces Southern Europe, before being ordered to the USS FORRESTAL as Executive Officer in June, 1955.

Completing his tour of duty aboard the FORRESTAL, Captain Anderson attended the National War College in Washington, D.C. Later he was Commanding Officer of the USS ONSLOW (AVP-48) prior to reporting for duty as Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations and Readiness with the Staff of Commander First Fleet aboard the flagship USS HELENA (CA-75).



EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Commander George H. Mahler

CDR George H. Mahler reported as Executive Officer of the USS F. D. ROOSEVELT in August 1960.

A native New Yorker who now makes his home in Virginia, CDR Mahler enlisted in the Naval Reserve entering as a seaman in 1937. Entering the Naval Academy in 1938, he graduated and was first commissioned in December, 1941.

During his naval career, CDR Mahler has had a wide variety of duties including CIC Officer, USS PENNSYLVANIA; Assistant Naval Attache, Copenhagen, Denmark and Ordnance Project Pilot at NOTS China Lake. He has served as Executive Officer of VF-9, and was Commanding Officer of VF-101 aboard the ROOSEVELT in 1952 and 1953.

In 1957-58, he commanded Carrier Air Groups TWELVE and FIFTEEN in the Pacific Fleet, prior to attending the Naval War College in 1959-60.

BACK TO MAYPORT

It was a beautiful sight that morning in August when we pulled back into Mayport after seven long months in the Mediterranean. Our wives and sweethearts — our "Rosies"— were waiting on the dock to meet us as we stood on the flight deck at quarters watching a 7-month old dream coming true . . . coming closer and closer with each blast of the tugboats' whistles. There wasn't a dry eye or a frown to be seen anywhere.

The brow went over . . . the leave-takers departed . . .

. . . and our families rushed aboard.

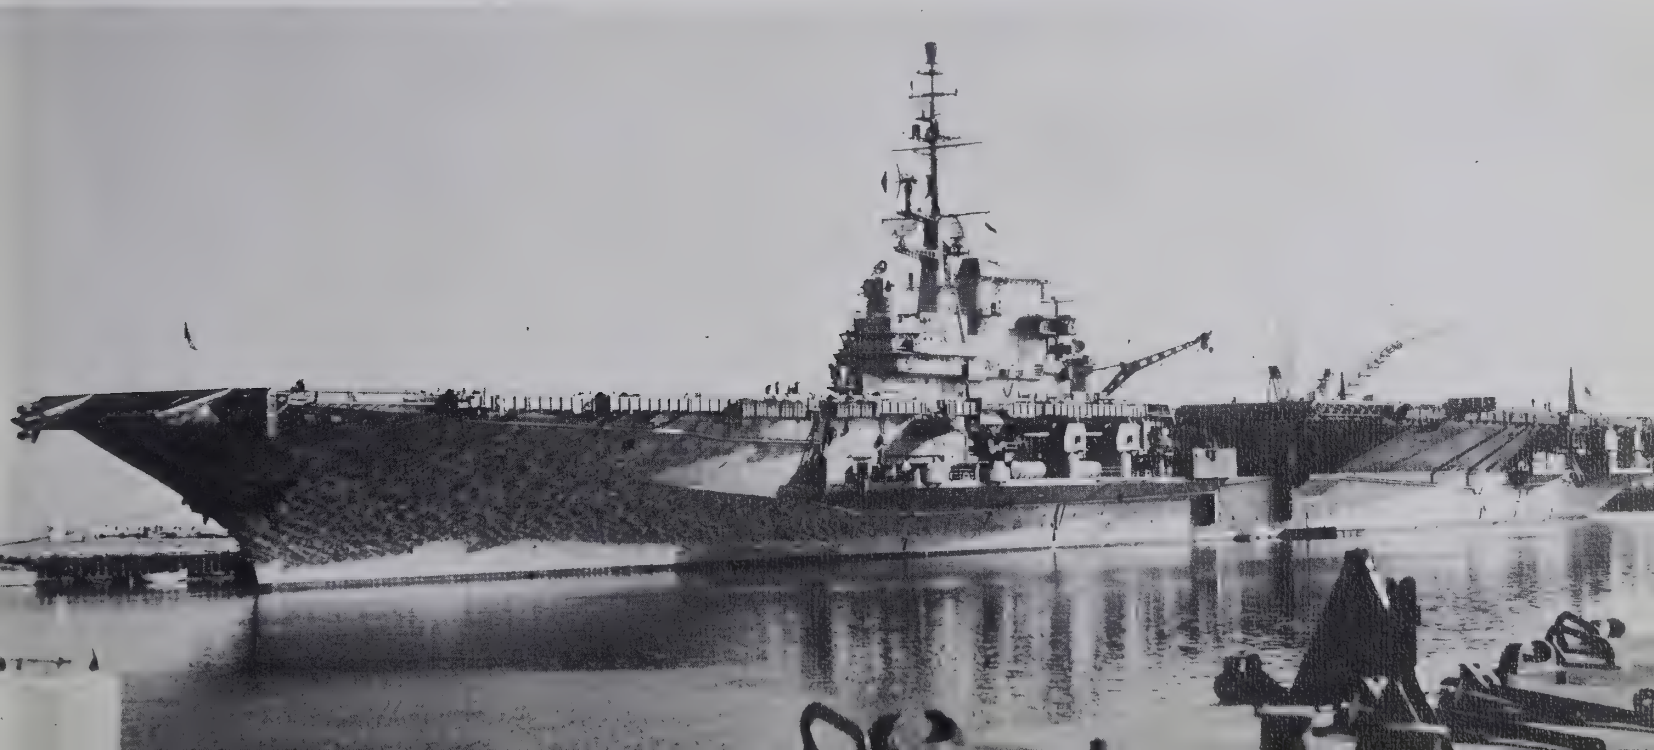
It was great to have Rosie tied up at Mayport again.



That was the month that Hurricane "Donna" swept up from the Caribbean, along the east coast to New England, devastating everything in its path and barely sparing the Jacksonville area with only heavy winds and high seas. But when we heard she was coming, we were ordered to get underway with the other fleet units and stay out of big Donna's way.

This is how it looked during Hurricane "Donna."

NEW YORK and the BROOKLYN NAVY YARD

In late September, we left Mayport for New York and a three-month period of overhaul and repairs in the Brooklyn Naval Shipyard.

We anchored in Gravesend Bay before entering the Bayonne, New Jersey Shipyard to remove our mast in order to traverse the East River beneath the Manhattan and Brooklyn Bridges. We watched through the chilly mist as the Russian steamer BALTICA moved by far to port carrying Premier Khrushchev to the UN for the debate that would soon make headlines the world over. It was to be an eventful three months for us, full of happenings large and small, and we would be there to witness them: a conference at the UN by world delegates with Khrushchev and Castro in the spotlight; the presidential campaign with its colorful parades and rallies and, finally, the election and the suspense of waiting; the paralyzing effect of the record-breaking snow storm in early December, and the tragic air disaster over Brooklyn and Staten Island.

With three months of repairing and preparing behind us, we trimmed, tightened and tested our ROSIE from stem to stern and made ready to leave the big city behind.

Back down the East River, past the now familiar skyline, under the Brooklyn Bridge again, we were on our way south . . . to Mayport and Christmas with our families.

We watched those concrete monuments to the world's biggest, busiest city slip by us for the last time.

We stopped in Norfolk to load ammunition

READY FOR THE BIG CRUISE

After Gitmo, we were back home for the last time before deploying for the Med. It had been a hard two weeks, and everyone welcomed the three weeks of rest and recreation in Mayport; but the big move was yet to come.

Then, in mid-February, our squadron personnel returned from their land bases at Cecil Field, NAS Jax and Sanford; ships' company leave parties began dwindling back to Jacksonville from all over the U.S.; final loads of supplies began to arrive; everyone was getting ready to go.

VADM O'Beirne, ComNavAirLant, came aboard to wish us well.

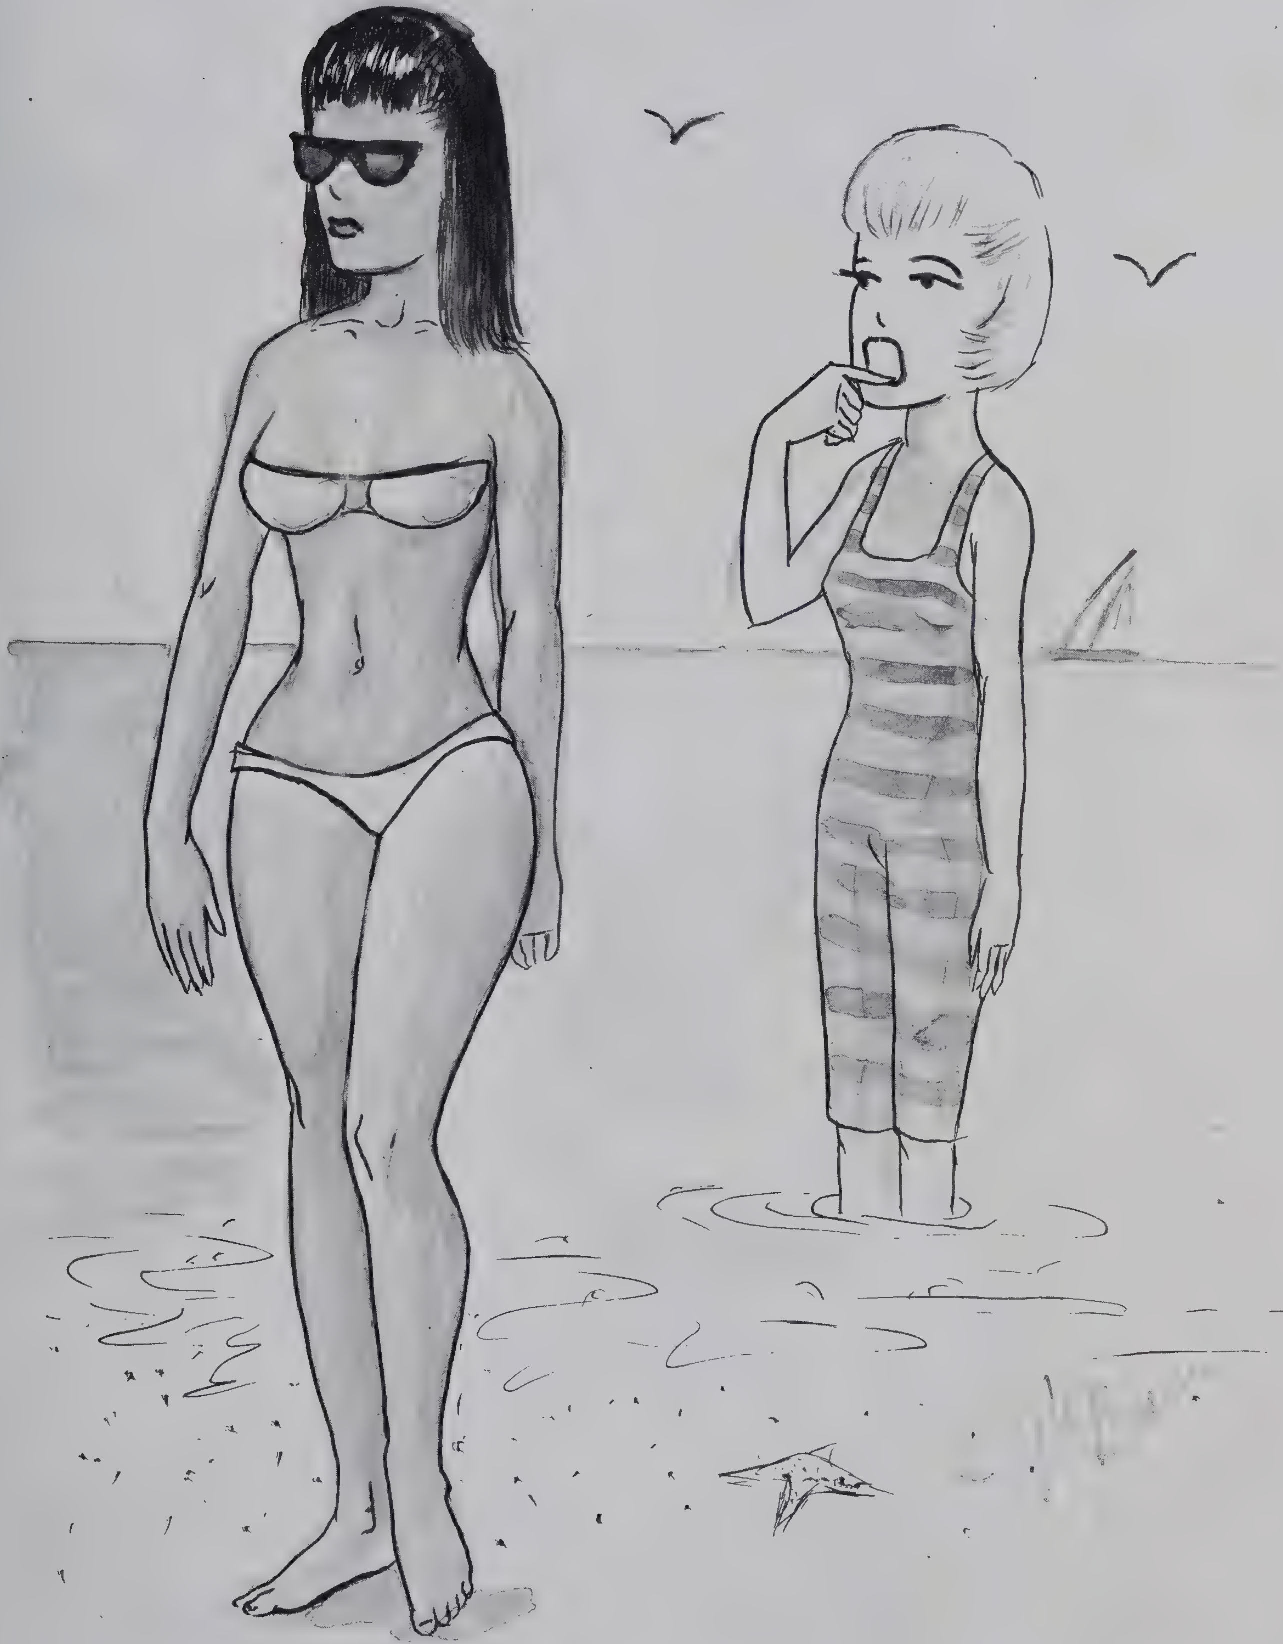
Ports and Tours



The Mediterranean, called the "Helen among oceans," is rimmed with many picturesque and fascinating ports. These ports provide places to relax for the short interludes during our busy operating schedule. But, to the officers and men of the ROOSEVELT, there is a far deeper purpose in these visits than mere relaxation, for we are all ambassadors of good will who, by our presence and example in these ports, perform a vital part of the ship's mission, by sustaining our friendly relations with the other nations of the free world, and justifying their trust and confidence in the United States.

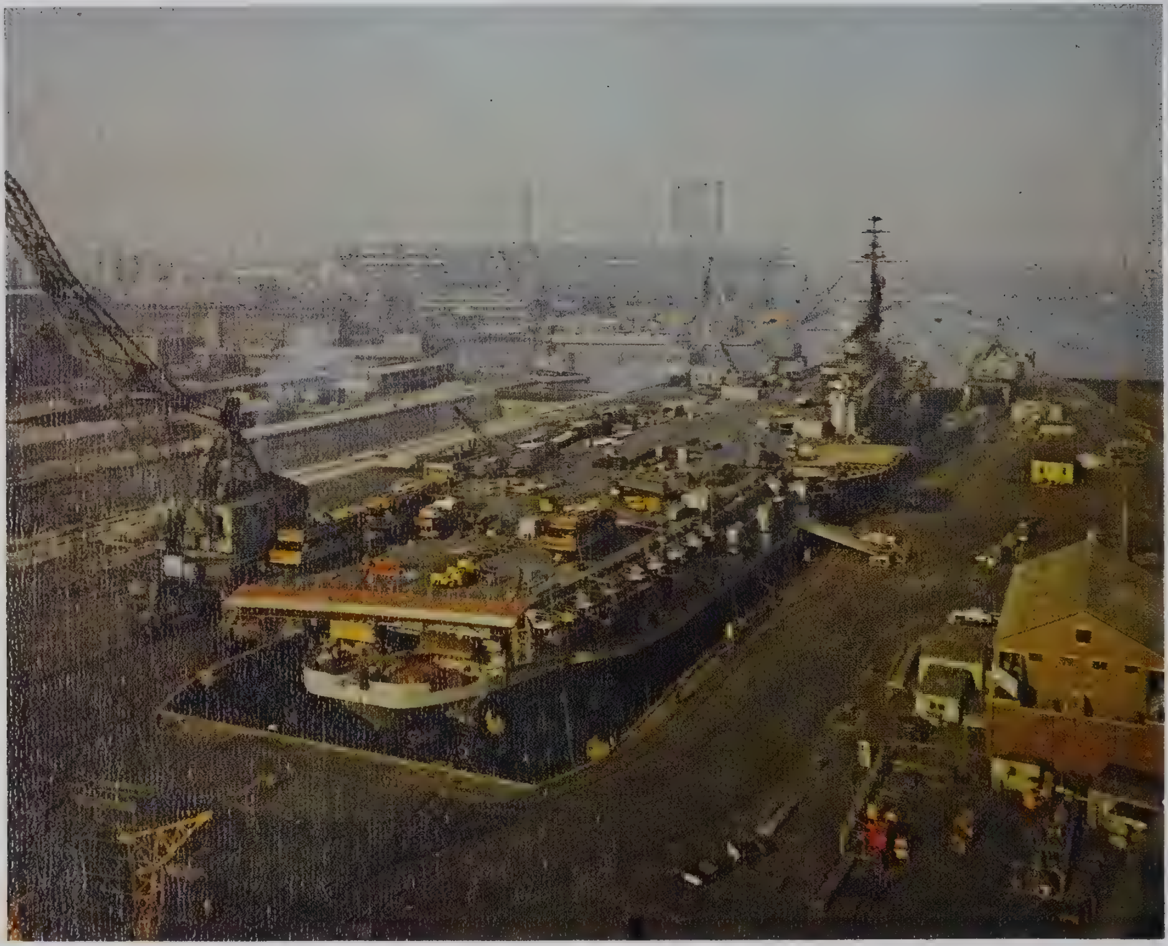
Rosie's Diary

Dear Diary,

Here I am on the cruise. While I'm here I'll try to keep a record of everything I see and do so I can tell the people back home all about it. I am not very nautical, so I may not get all those salty terms right. But I'll record things, as I see them, as well as I can.



October 10

I walked through the main gate of the New York Naval Shipyard to find the USS FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT sitting high and dry in a big hole called a dry dock. On board, things didn't look much like an aircraft carrier (I think): instead of planes, there were trucks and piles of boxes sitting all over the floor; wires, ropes and pipes hung in festoons in many of the halls, and yard workmen swarmed all over the ship, welding, sleeping, eating, sleeping, doing other work, and sleeping.

October 27

This was the 15th anniversary of the ROOSEVELT, so the ship threw quite a party in a big night club in Queens. One of the main performers was someone named Sabrina, but I think Perry Como would have been better.

December 18

New York, with its Empire State Building, Central Park, Times Square, Broadway and everything else, was great and we were sorry to leave, but we were due at our home port for Christmas.

December 23

Again the ship threw a party, this time, a Christmas party for the men's dependents, and it was a gala affair with Santa as the guest of honor.

January 5

Today, all kinds of planes were brought onto the ship for our two week trip to Cuba, some vacation resort called GTMO.

January 7

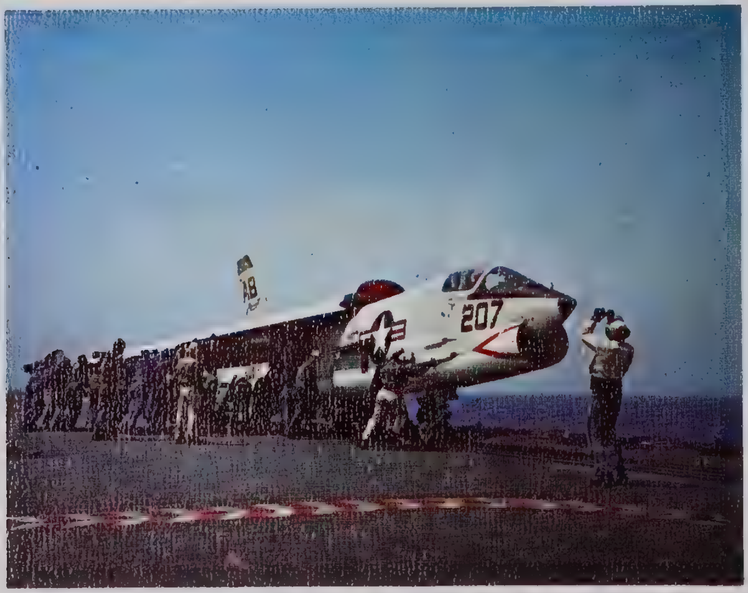
We left Mayport for two weeks in which nothing happened that we wanted to remember—somehow, there seemed to be a lot of work to do for a vacation.

February 18

Goodbye USA—we're off for a Mediterranean adventure (or something!)

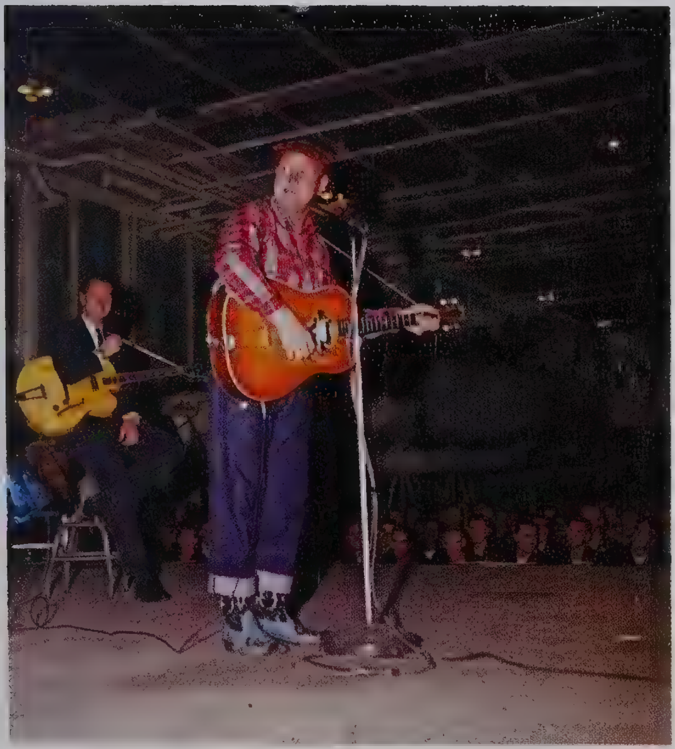
February 23

Some of our planes left for a shore base in Spain . . . too bad they couldn't stay on the ship with us. The ship we were taking the place of sent a group of guys over to give us a show, and it was really good . . . but we weren't very nice about it, because after the show we beat up all but one of their boxers.



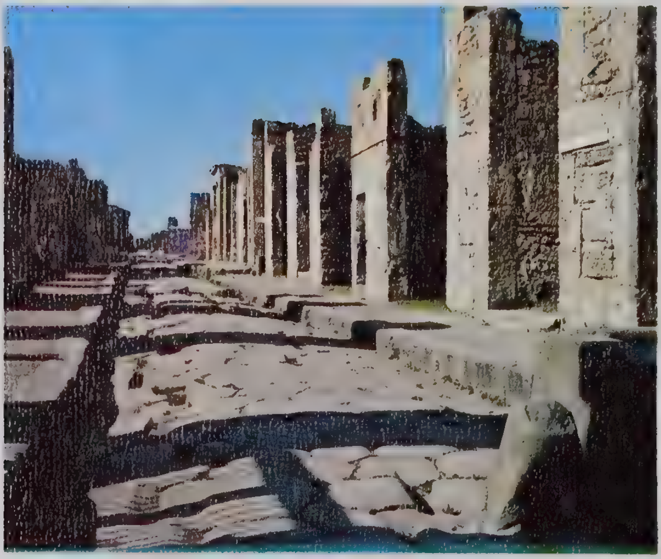
February 26

Those nice people in the USO arranged for Buddy Rogers and his troop of entertainers to give us a great show on the ROOSEVELT.



March 2

Naples, Italy was the first port we visited. There were many interesting things to do and see.



While in Naples, some of us went to Pompeii. This city was buried by lava from Mt. Vesuvius and there are many interesting stories behind it (or under it).

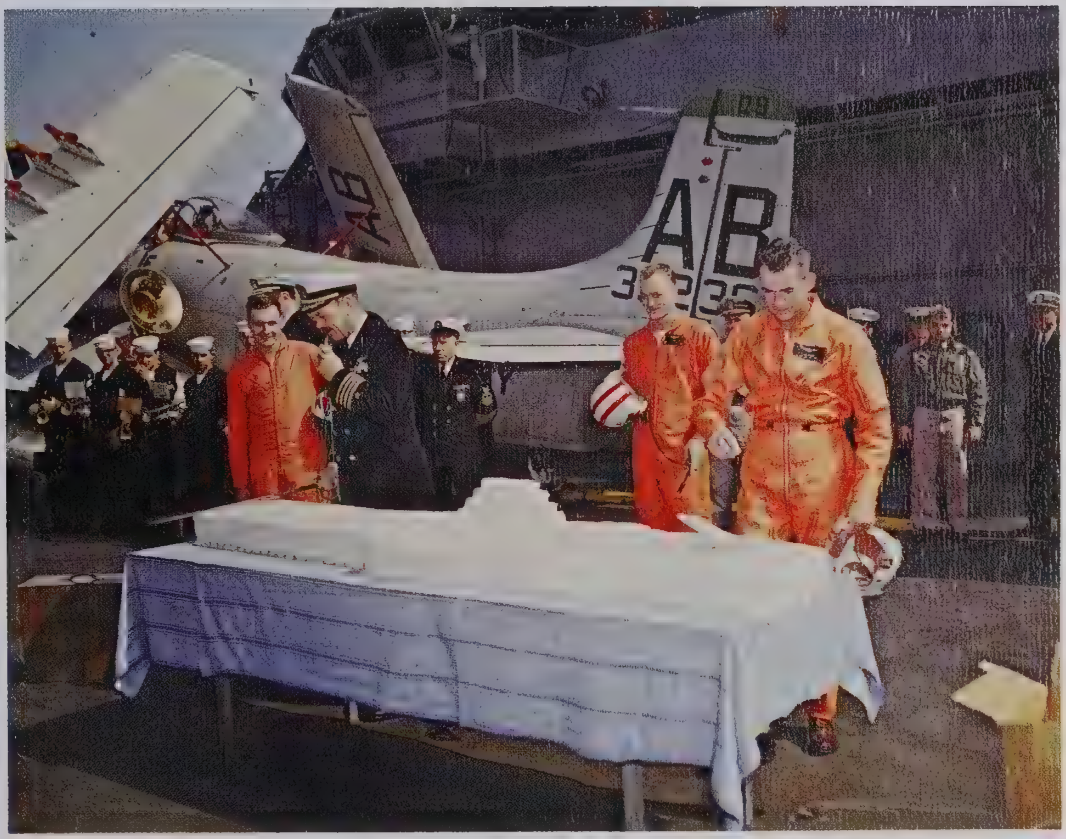
5281

March 7

We left Naples for a period at sea, heading, indirectly, toward Tripoli, Libya. While we were throwing planes off the front of the boat, and catching them in the back, someone realized that we had caught 100,000 planes since the boat was made (I guess that's a lot because they baked a cake for the pilot, who happened to be a nice man named CAG.)



March 21

Tripoli, our second port, seemed to have some people who were not too friendly, because they covered their faces with veils when the tourists passed by and wouldn't let us take pictures. But, there was a nice group of air force and diplomatic people there, and they showed us the city, so we all had a good time.

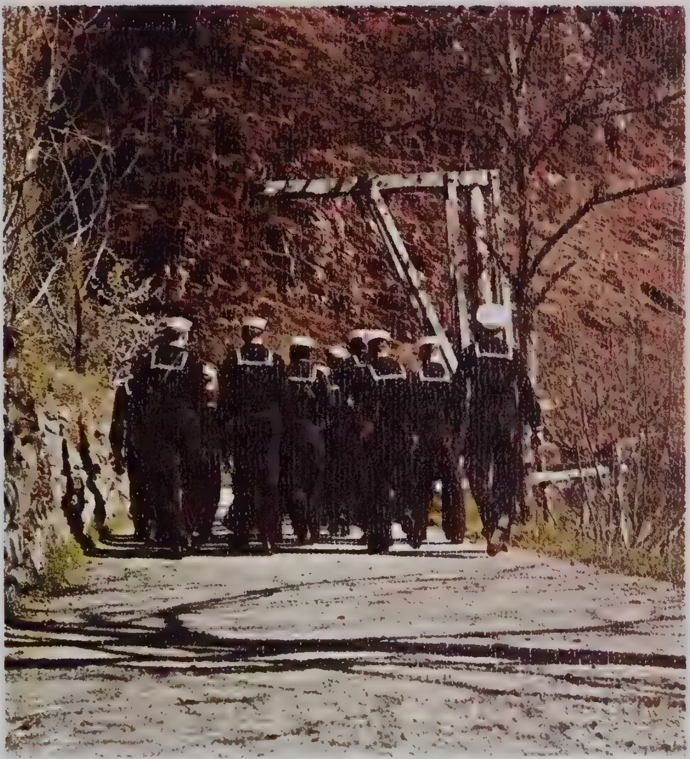
March 24

Back to sea again. While heading toward our next stop, we needed some more gas, so we pulled up next to another ship which was just like a floating gas station and filled our tank. Later, we got supplies from a ship that was just like a big grocery store . . . it was fun!

March 28

Cannes was the most fun of any port we have hit so far. Southern France is a very beautiful place to visit.

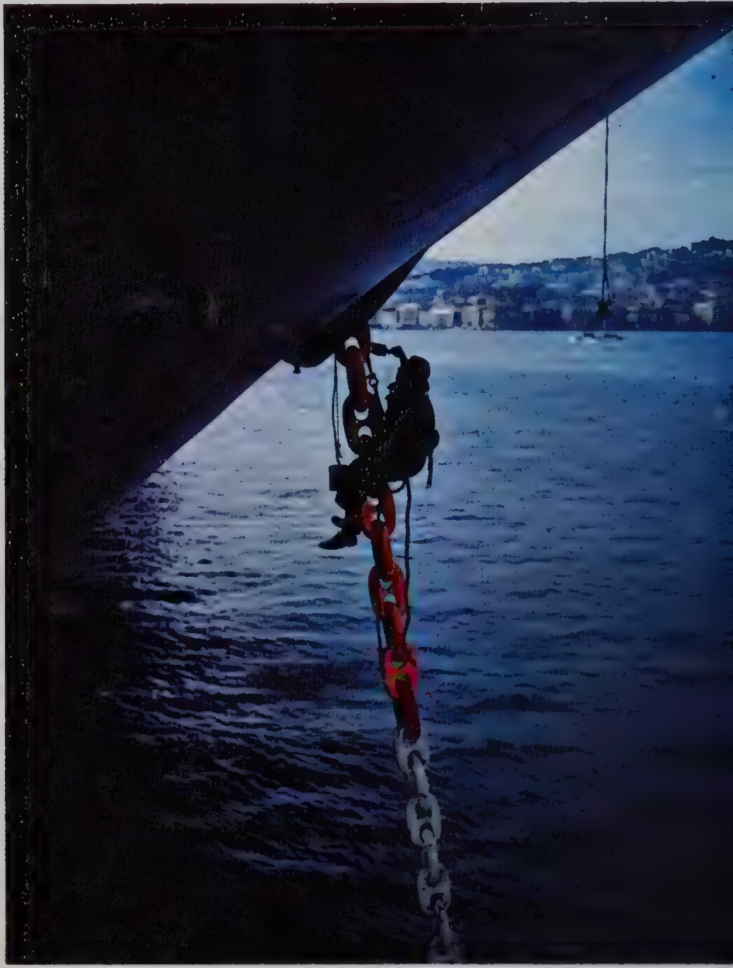
At this time of the year, the Alps are in their full glory. The cliffs, bluffs, mountains and snowscapes looked magnificent . . . but skiing is dangerous.



PEONE

April 7

Things were interesting both off and on the ship in Palermo. We had entertainment on the main floor, and football games on the roof. Ticket sales for our charity raffles got underway, and someone even sold the boss one. And someone even got some painting done.



April 14

Naturally, the next thing on the program was more practice for the airplane clubs on the boat (at sea, they did this all the time—if there were enough planes.)

April 25

Again, we found ourselves back in Naples. This time, many of us took the tour to Capri, playground of royalty—and some others.

And on the ROOSEVELT, things were being well taken care of by professionals.

May 6

After a trip to Augusta Bay (which I think is some sort of fleet parking lot) where we threw a few division picnics, we headed out again for flying, working, swapping things with other ships and all sorts of enjoyable naval activities.

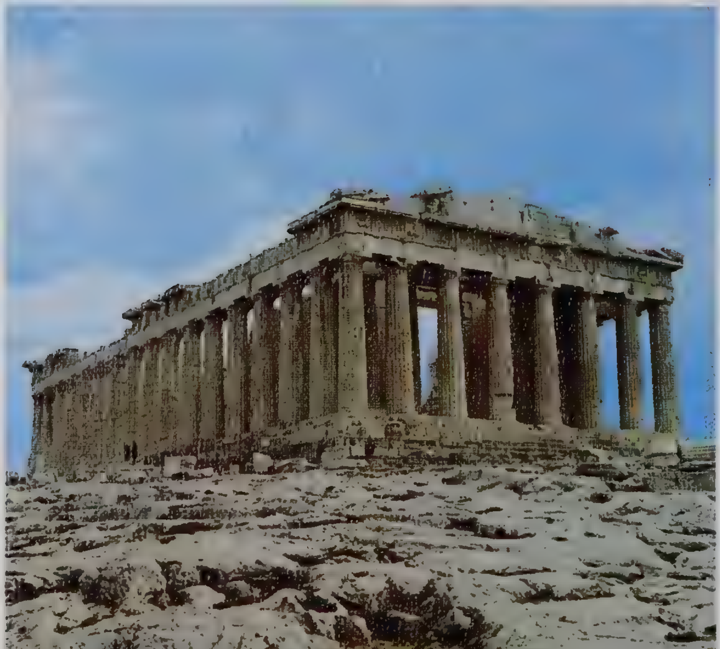
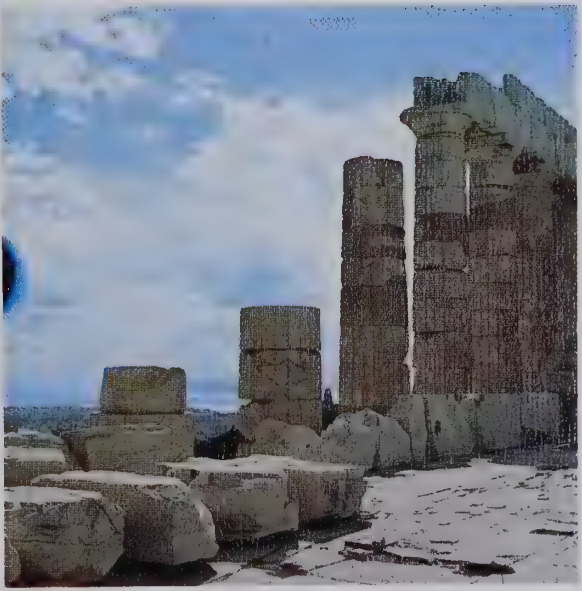
May 15

Athens was one of the most interesting stops we made, because there was so much to see—most of it old ruins . . .

but everyone had a swell time climbing the rock piles and taking pictures.





VETO

April 22

We went to sea again after our visit to Athens and the aviators did some more flying—the rest of the people worked. Sometimes at night, they would turn out all the lights except the red ones, and the people in a place called CCA sat around watching TV and keeping track of the race results on a big plastic board.

June 1

We liked Cannes so much the first time, we decided to go back and see it again. Many of us took the tours to Monaco, Nice, Villafranche, Golf Juan, Grasse and many other places. There was so much history in that area—for instance, they say that when Napoleon landed in Golf Juan upon his escape from Elba, he said "Voila" and made a bee line to a place called the "Crazy Horse" whatever that is. Anyone who could beg, borrow or steal the required money took the Paris Tour—it was a very cultural trip.

Meanwhile back in Cannes, the men spent a lot of time down on the Riviera "soaking up the sun" but the tours seemed more interesting.

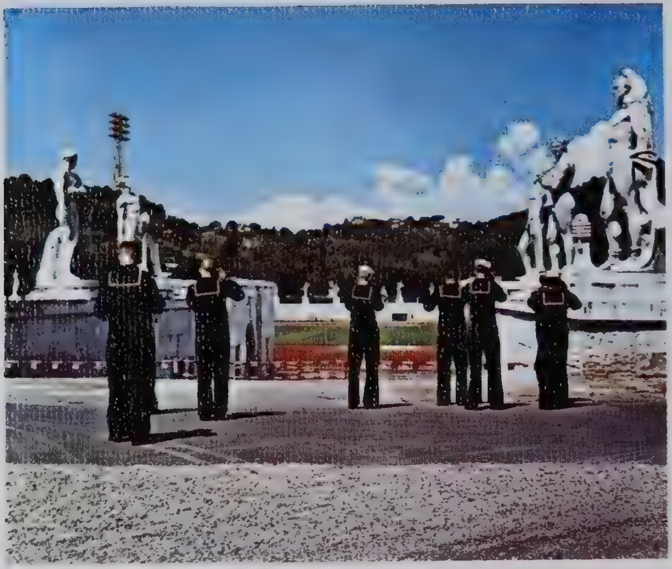
We also had a few admirals come to see the ship while in port—they gave a friendly little inspection (which always makes a port more interesting.) I can't figure out why the VIP's always come aboard when we are in Cannes.

June 16

Today, we anchored in Palermo and got a new captain, mid much pomp and circumstance.

June 26

Back in Naples—some men say that Naples is our home port but I don't think they're right, because most guys say Mayport is. Many men had seen enough of Naples, so Rome was their destination.



Rome, the City on the Tiber, the Eternal City and a dozen or so other names, was quite an impressive city to visit.

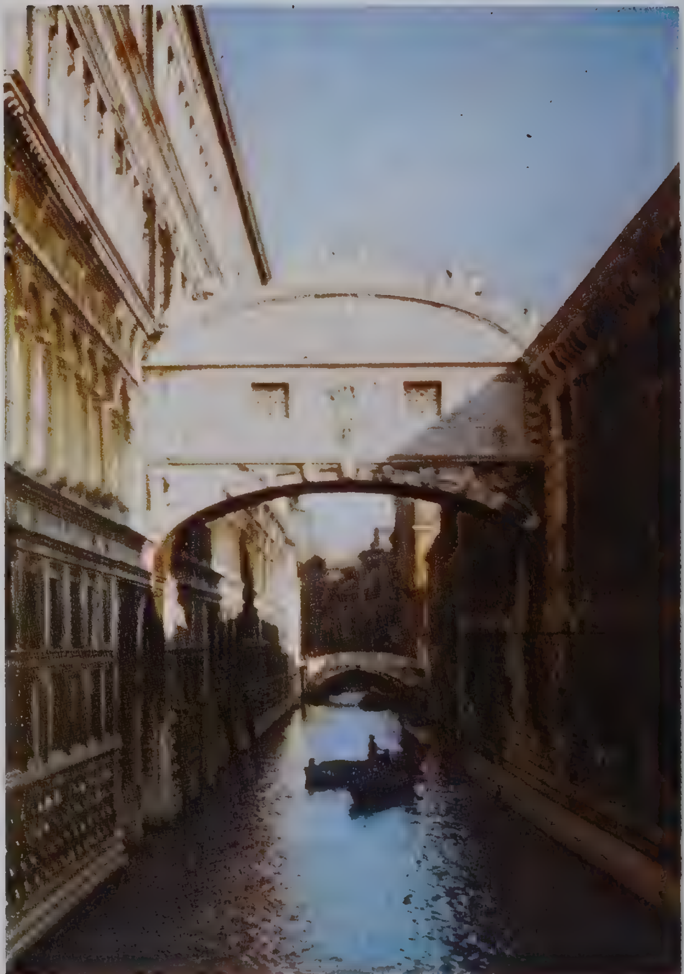
July 5

Ports are fun and interesting but there is nothing for sailors quite like getting back to sea . . . more GQ (General Qonfusion), flying, cleaning up, lines to stand in, and things to do that make life nautical.

July 10

Genoa is strategically placed with the Italian Riviera spread out on both sides of it, making it like a jewel in its setting. Columbus was born there, among others, naturally . . .

. . . and there are many beautiful sights in and around the city, each with a history behind it.



From Genoa, some of us took the tour to Venice. I sometimes get the impression that the last thing that many sailors want to see is water, but I guess Venice is different. It is a strange and magnificent place with its Grand Canal, St. Mark's Church and a Square and so much else.

AB

July 17

Again, we were back in the middle of the sea for more flying practice and working practice.

July 29

Despite the wonderful beaches and sights of Leghorn, the main attractions of this port were the tours to Pisa and Florence.

August 18

After a fancy ceremony giving our place in the Mediterranean to the INTREPID, we decided to go home, so we asked the admiral if it was all right, and he said okay. We picked up that poor bunch of guys who had to spend the whole time in Spain, put up some flags, and now . . . we're heading for Mayport.

It's been a good cruise, but we're all glad to be bound for home.

Double, double, toil and trouble

— and of course, Navy chow.

Some of us have been at it longer than others.

The devoted men pictured here have had the 'privilege' of serving on board the ROOSEVELT for a total of 1,880 days, or 45,120 hours, or 2,707,200 minutes (as of the date the photo was taken). These plank owners have made many contributions to this ship during their five years of service aboard. Left to right, they are: Birty Hadnot, Jr., RD2; Billy J. Brady, BT2; Ronald C. Bolen, BT1; Charles W. Kuntz, BT2; Joseph F. Howell, BT1; Oscar E. Williams, BT1; Gary L. Swartz, BT3; and Charles T. Shorey, GM3.

Admiral Hayward, congratulating the group, is not actually a plank owner, though he is in spirit, having been the ROOSEVELT's Commanding Officer in 1956.

Men of Roosevelt

The pages that follow show FDR crewmen as they go about their daily routines . . . keeping ROSIE, the great steel lady, powdered and painted, and in top operating condition around the clock. It is here, in the daily doing of routine things that the fate of the ship's operation, the successful accomplishment of its assigned mission, is ultimately determined. It is to these modern carrier sailors that the ROOSEVELT owes this success.

up in the wild blue yonder . . .

. . . or hidden within the confines of the FDR's steel hull . . . that's where you'll find the Air Department. The gurgle of jet fuel being pumped . . . masses of "blueshirts" straining against the wing of an A4D . . . the piercing scream of jet intakes sucking air . . . a catapult sizzling in its gutter as it slings a plane into the horizon with a burst of steam and hot exhaust . . . arms and hands waving and jerking in automatic motion as directors taxi and position planes . . . the catapult officer twirling in his tracks to give a plane the "GO" signal . . . a weird fantasy of the jet age . . . a flight deck ballet . . . and the straining screech of steel arresting cables being yanked into action by a tailhook . . . the exhausted scraping as they are released, slinking and writhing back into position — taut and waiting. Around the clock the Air Department keeps 'em flying — keeps Rosie in action. A mobile fighting force . . . venomous and deadly.

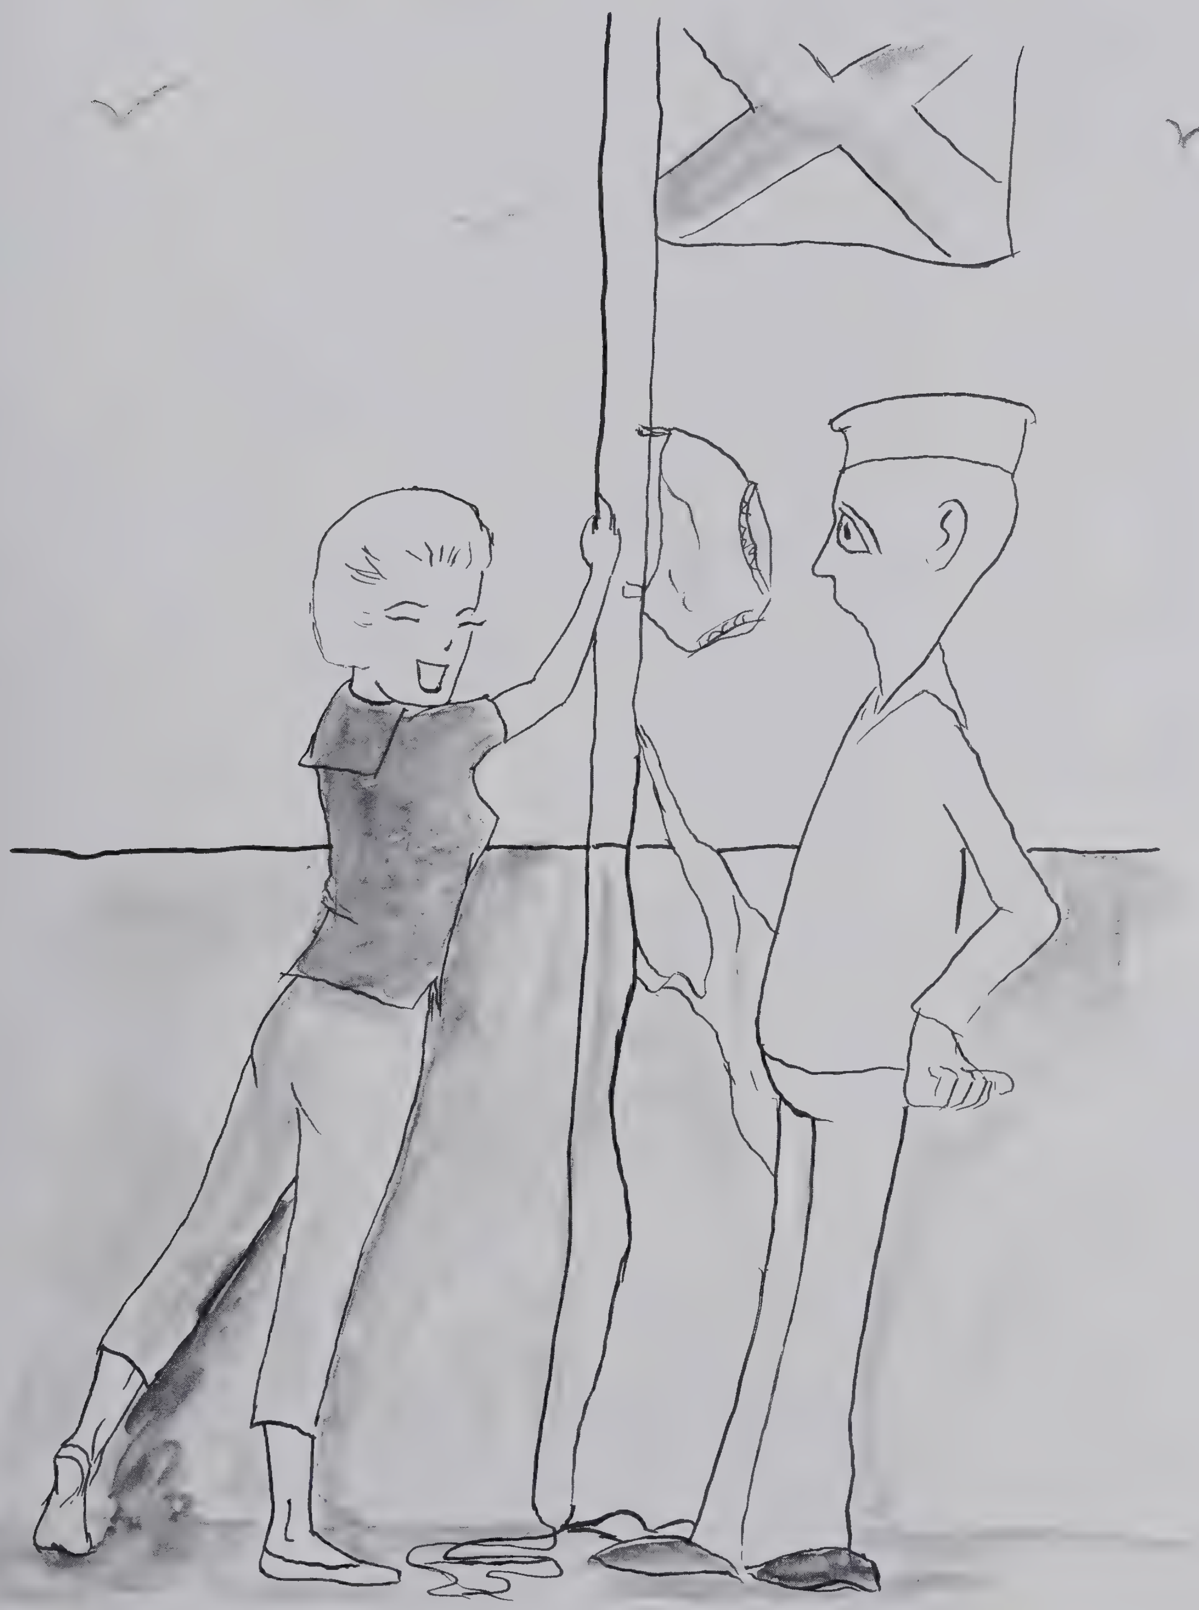
Communications Department



LCDR A. M. Hill
Communications Officer

It all started with a guy named Morse . . . or was it Marconi? On the other hand, maybe it was Da Vinci. Nevertheless, modern communications is one of the most complex facets of carrier operations. Everything from dit-dah's and teletype to flashing lights and signal flags is utilized. Although the former requires electrical current and reception, the blinker and semaphore—while seeming primitive by comparison—are virtually indispensable to tactical maneuvers in formation at sea. One should never underestimate the value of visual communications. The importance of the "wireless" used by main communications, however, goes without saying. And Main Comm provides that extra bit of morale by supplying the FDR Daily News with the latest happenings from the teletype press ("Diplomatic sources revealed today that rzybkfh and zpxdyhip xlidpyq . . .")

Who needs Supply? EVERYBODY needs Supply! Even Supply needs Supply! Supply has supplies, whether they be abstract, material or otherwise. And no ship or station or even a community, for that matter, can get along without proper supplies. Main Supply maintains files, records, and an infinite variety of accounts. GSK is a subsidiary of Main Supply where one may obtain a great variety of goodies after proper request procedure and paperwork through Main Supply — pencils, paper, glue, G.I. Cans, etc. Disbursing has money — need more be said? S-3 Division has foreign merchandise, clothing, notions and sundries, gedunk, and haircuts. Commissary feeds the crew (milk, potatoes, steak and SOS), and Wardroom feeds the officers (milk, potatoes, steak and SOS). Our modern day Magellans — the quartermasters of Navigation, still use the sextant and compass to navigate. The stars and sun are their guide points, just as they were for the mariners of centuries ago. Navigation is an art in itself, and the QM's are masters of the art. What happens when it's cloudy or the stars aren't visible? Well, you'll have to ask the quartermasters about that—but they still manage to navigate. They also serve as steersmen and maintain the ship's log.

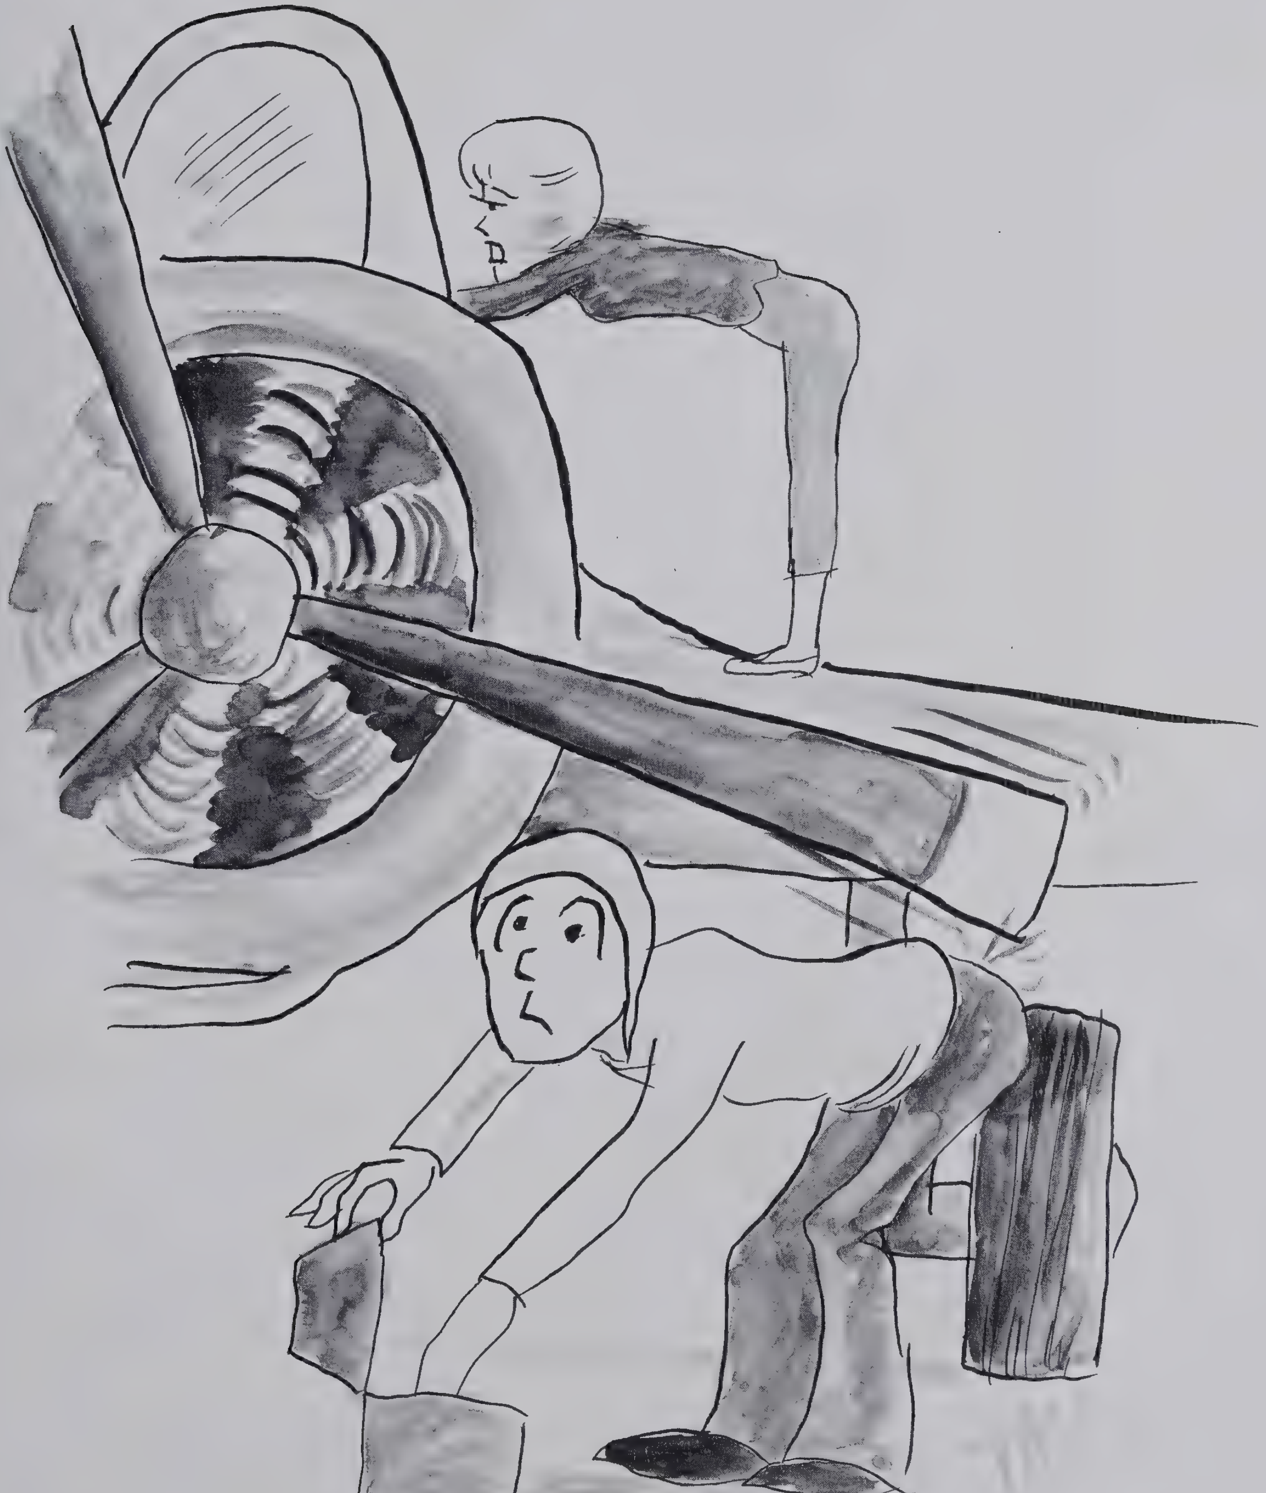
Carrier Air Group One



CDR Arthur Ray Hawkins
Commander Air Group ONE

An aircraft carrier is built with only one major purpose in mind, and that purpose is fulfilled by the men and planes of CVG-1. This purpose, toward which the great majority of all work conducted on the ROOSEVELT is directed, is to always be in a state of operational readiness in any circumstance. As long as there can be immediate action taken against any aggressor, offensively or defensively, the entire existence of the carrier is justified.

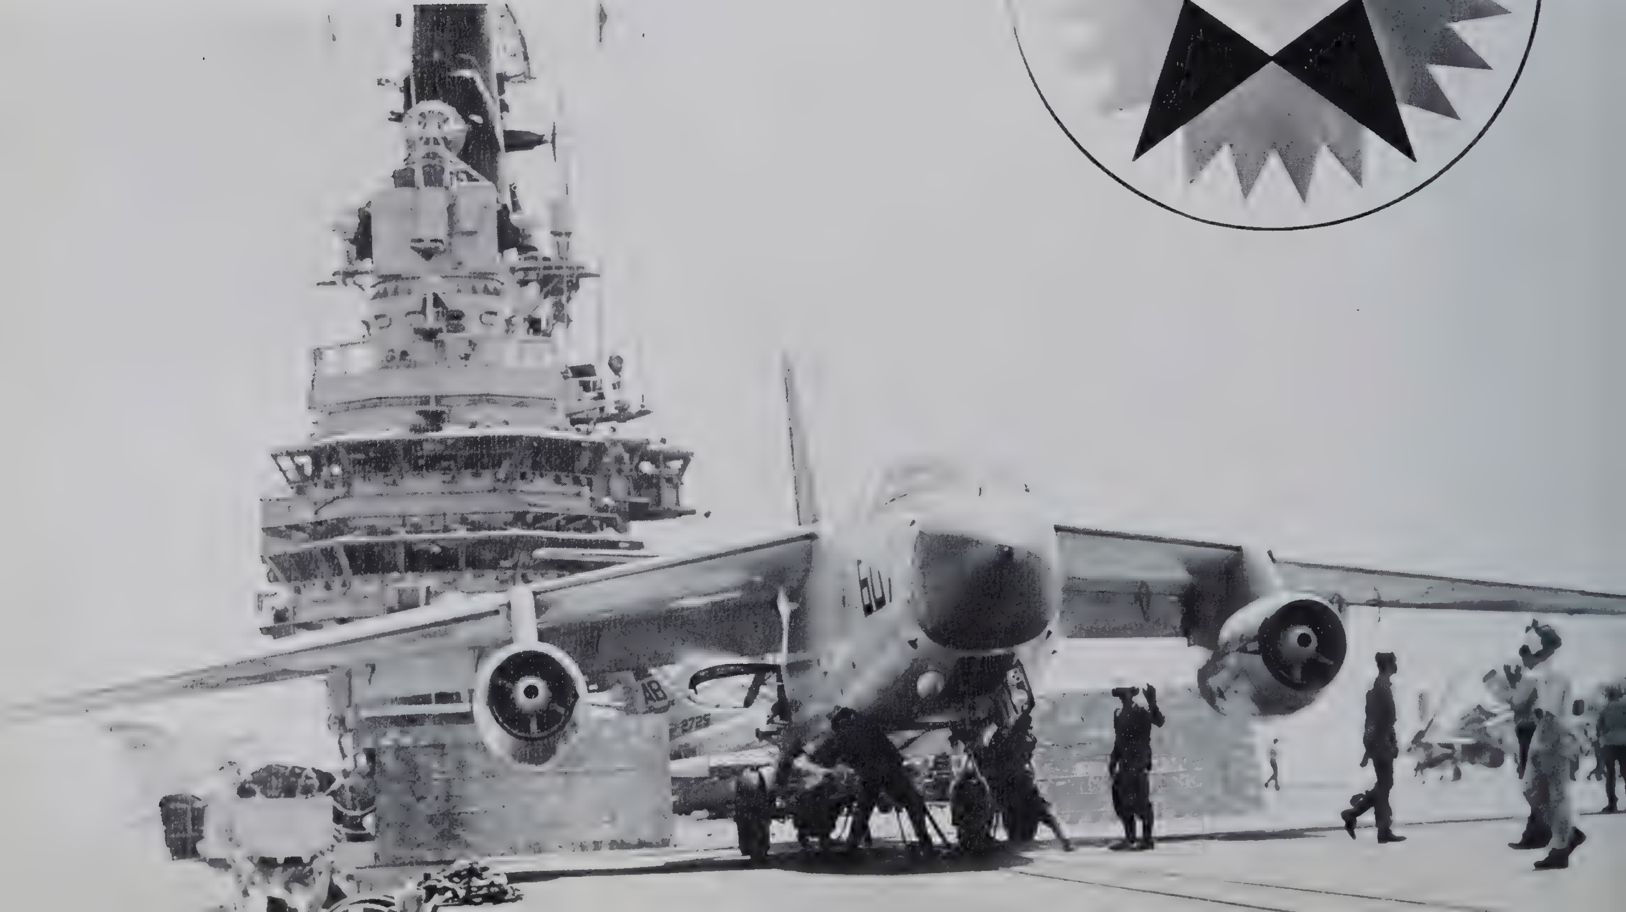
HEAVY ATTACK SQUADRON ELEVEN

Heavy Attack Squadron ELEVEN (VAH-11) was formed on November 1, 1955, from Composite Squadron EIGHT (VC-8). In November, 1957, VAH-11 received its first complement of A3D-2 "Skywarriors," the aircraft which has become the heart of the fast carrier attack force. The "Checkertails" have won two Heavy Attack ONE bombing derbies and the first Carrier Airmanship Trophy. VAH-11 has made three cruises to the Mediterranean in the FDR.

CDR H. Kaminer Manship
Commanding Officer 21 March—

CDR Thomas W. Ownby
Executive Officer

VAH-11



CDR Charles O. Donnaud III was the Commanding Officer of Heavy Attack Squadron ELEVEN from May 1960, until his death on 21 March 1961 when he and his crew were killed as their A3D failed to recover from a loft maneuver performed during a fire power demonstration near the ship.

CDR Donnaud's career was filled with numerous awards, some of them earned by his personal abilities and some by the excellence he spurred in others by his incisive leadership. Before assuming command of VAH-11, CDR Donnaud served as Operations Officer of VAH-5 and as Executive Officer of VAH-11. In 1958, his crew won the heavy attack phase of Naval Weapons Meet, and he was designated as heavy attack "Pilot of the Year." In the 1960 Naval Weapons Meet at Yuma, Arizona, his crew again won top honors in the heavy attack events. In the 1961 HAT WING ONE Bombing Derby, CDR Donnaud led VAH-11 to a sweeping victory. Once again his crew won the competition for the best loft bombing in the wing.

VAH-11 was uniquely fortunate to have received the benefit of CDR Donnaud's leadership and devotion to duty. The squadron's outstanding record and reputation are both a tribute to him and a source of pride and incentive to all whose response to his leadership made that record possible.

VA-12

Commissioned in May 1945 as Fighter Bomber Squadron FOUR at NAS Alameda, California, the "Flying Ubangis" have since had a varied and colorful history. Their first planes were F4U Corsairs. In May of 1947, while VA-12 was spending a year and a half at NAS San Diego, new F8F Bearcats were given to VA-12, which became the official name of the squadron in August 1948. After moving to NAS Jacksonville, the squadron made a transition to jets, receiving F2H-2 Banshees in September 1950. In April 1957, another change was made, to A4D-1, and then to newer A4D-2 Skyhawks. VA-12 has been very active in the North Atlantic and the Mediterranean on many carriers and bases.

On 6 July 1948, all AEW teams attached to various attack squadrons of the Atlantic Fleet were combined and commissioned as Carrier Air-Borne Early Warning Squadron TWELVE (VAW-12). The primary mission of VAW-12 is to provide early warning of approaching ships and aircraft, with particular emphasis on low level attacking aircraft.

On 23 August 1948, the squadron moved to its assigned home port at NAS Quonset Point, Rhode Island. Planes originally assigned to the squadron were TBM's of the E and W configurations, and later, AD3W's. In 1960 VAW-12 received the new Grumman WF-2 Tracer Aircraft which is now being used with excellent results.

ATTACK SQUADRON FIFTEEN

VA-15

First designated Torpedo Squadron FOUR aboard the USS RANGER (CV-4), the VALIONS have 19 years of service on sixteen carriers and many shore bases to give credit to the title Attack Squadron FIFTEEN. VA-15 saw action against both the Nazi and Japanese enemy in World War II.

The AD type aircraft has been used by VA-15 for the past twelve years, and has been flown all over the world by the VALIONS.

The present deployment to the Mediterranean is the squadron's seventh, five of which have been on the USS FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

ATTACK SQUADRON ONE SEVEN TWO

VA-172

The history of Attack Squadron ONE SEVEN TWO began on 20 August 1945 with the commissioning of Bombing Fighting Squadron 82 (VBF-82) at NAS Alameda, California. The new squadron flew F6F's which were quickly replaced by F4U's. In January 1946 the squadron moved to Quonset Point, Rhode Island. After three years of operations the squadron moved to Cecil Field, Florida; received new jet fighter planes; and shortly thereafter, was sent to NAS Jacksonville, Florida. On 1 November 1955, the squadron received the designation Attack Squadron ONE SEVEN TWO. The squadron has made many colorful and active cruises on many carriers, including seeing action in Korea, and has made many accomplishments in its history.

VFP-62

VFP-62 is organized to provide all important photo aerial reconnaissance for the ships it serves on in the fleet. Detachment 37, flying the F8U-1P Crusader, provides the FDR and her accompanying ships with not only reconnaissance, but other useful forms of aerial photography. Flying at speeds up to one thousand miles per hour, the Crusaders carry out their missions armed with nothing more than cameras.

HELICOPTER SQUADRON TWO-DETACHMENT 37

HU-2

"Fleet Service," the motto of Helicopter Squadron Two (HU-2), goes a long way toward describing its mission in the U.S. Atlantic Fleet. The helicopter's primary task is search and rescue at sea. Pilots have very affectionately dubbed the helo "Angel," expressing their confidence when they see one of them hovering over the water as an alert, benevolent lifeguard during launch or recovery. If a man falls in the water, this mobile aircraft can dart to the scene of emergency like a mosquito, stop on a dime, lower a ladder (and a crewman if necessary), and whisk the victim back onto the safety of the flight deck almost before the man has a chance to get damp. And when she's not a hovering lifeguard, the helo is transferring personnel, shooting aerial photographs, conducting reconnaissance, effecting radar calibration, or carrying the chaplain and mail to smaller ships of the fleet. It staggers the imagination to ponder the versatility of the helicopter; there's almost no limit to the number and types of utility missions she carries out daily.

THE RED RIPPERS

FIGHTER SQUADRON ELEVEN

VF-11

This Mediterranean Cruise has been a most unusual one for Fighter Squadron ELEVEN. The Red Rippers departed Mayport on 15 February 1961 aboard the F.D.R. and became temporarily shore-based at the U.S. Naval Station, Rota, Spain on 23 February.

With ideal weather (Southern California type minus the smog) and outstanding maintenance support, the squadron has managed to average approximately 600 hours of flight time per month. Tactics, gunnery and sidewinder firings have been the order of the day, with the F-104's from a nearby Air Force base providing readily accessible camera gunnery targets for the always aggressive Ripper pilots.

The squadron's Wild Boar insignia precipitated a unique "Ripper to People" program in the Rota area. As may or may not be known, the Boar insignia has been used since 1927 by permission of the Gordon Gin Company. It was learned shortly after VF-11's arrival in Spain that a local bodega (winery) by the name of Gonzalez-Byass was affiliated with the Gordon Co. The entire squadron visited the bodega, sampled its wines, and became fast friends with its owners, the Gonzalez family.

There were many interesting and historical places for squadron personnel to visit during their liberty hours. Cadiz (possibly the oldest city in Europe), Jerez de lo Frontera, Puerto De Santa Maria and the small town of Rota itself provided many of the attractions, not the least of which were the lovely Spanish senoritas.

CRUISE BOOK STAFF

The Staff wishes to express its sincere thanks to:

- —The Divisional Sales Representatives, whose conscientious efforts contributed greatly to the success of our sales campaign;
- —All hands in the Photo Lab whose work and talents were responsible for the traditionally fine photography in this year's "Rosie" publication;
- —The management and staff of our publisher, Howard Wohl Associates, and his printer, H. G. Roebuck and Son, Inc., through whose outstanding cooperation and quality workmanship this edition of "Rosie" was made possible.
